Our Mission

The mission of Community First Foundation is to improve quality of life by increasing community generosity and involvement.

What We Do

Community First Foundation improves the quality of life in the seven-county metropolitan Denver community.

We use our resources to fund vital community initiatives, support nonprofit organizations, and assist individuals with charitable giving.

We help donors support charitable causes through planned giving and Donor Advised Funds, and offer grants, fund management and fund-raising education to nonprofits.

We have been serving the community since our founding in 1975.

Dear friends of the Foundation,

Community First Foundation has been supporting Denver-area communities for nearly 35 years. But we’re not looking backwards—we’re always looking ahead. That’s why we’re calling this Benefit Report The Future of Philanthropy. Inside this piece, we share the steps we’ve taken to help the nonprofit sector, Denver communities, and our programs move forward.

Although 2009 was marked by the challenges of the recession, many nonprofits and individuals responded by redirecting their energy to essentials. We, too, have taken this approach.

The purpose of our signature initiative, Nonprofit Preservation, is to prepare nonprofit organizations for the future. Sixteen organizations chose to build endowments through our fourth Endowment Challenge Grants program. We are so impressed with their dedication to balancing immediate needs with future needs in a challenging economy. By year-end 2009, we are managing $12 million in total endowment funds for 65 organizations who joined an endowment program in the last five years.

In 2009 we also chose to increase our focus on GivingFirst, our e-philanthropy program, and recorded the best year yet: more than $1.1 million in online donations processed through GivingFirst.org for Colorado nonprofits. We ended 2009 with $48.5 million in assets, up $4.5 million from the previous year, and awarded $3.3 million in grants to strengthen the community.

As always, thank you so much for your support and we are grateful for the opportunity to work together to improve quality life in our communities.

Here’s to the future!

Looking Ahead in the Nonprofit Community

Nonprofit Preservation Initiative: Supporting Nonprofits for the Long-Term

Five years ago, Community First Foundation launched an initiative that supports the long-term health of local nonprofits. In 2009, the initiative featured three parts:

- Endowment Challenge Grants, a matching grant program that is helping nonprofits build endowments.
- GivingFirst, an online giving program (see pages 4 & 5), that helped 223 nonprofits receive $1.1 million in donations.
- Nonprofit Programs and Services, featuring Strengthening Partners Grants, educational seminars and mentoring for the Foundation's nonprofit fundholders.

Foundation Helps Preserve Nonprofits with Endowment Grants

In the last year, Community First Foundation continued to help nonprofits through its Endowment Challenge Grants program. A fourth grant program was founded to encourage nonprofits to build permanent pools of funds called endowments. Over time, this type of fund can provide a valuable revenue source and make nonprofits more financially stable.

The Foundation’s program matches fifty cents for every dollar a nonprofit raises for an endowment, up to $100,000. For additional support, the Foundation also guarantees a 5% return on funds raised during the first two years.

Sixty-five nonprofits have chosen Community First Foundation to help them build brighter futures through endowment growth. Some of these nonprofits are in the building stage while others are already benefiting from endowment earnings.

Local Nonprofit, RMPAT, Successfully Builds Endowment

Estimates show that one in three children in Colorado is unprepared for school—setting the stage for a lifetime of disadvantage. Children from high-risk, low-income or minority families face even greater obstacles.

Rocky Mountain Parents as Teachers (RMPAT), a Colorado nonprofit based on a successful national model, works to change these statistics. They run a comprehensive home visitation program that educates parents about child rearing and provides ongoing support.

RMPAT has supported more than 1,900 children since its founding 20 years ago. But without a reliable way to sustain their programs, they have concerns about future funding. They decided to join Community First Foundation’s endowment-building program to be less reliant on grants for daily operations.

“We were drawn to the 5% interest guarantee and the number of respected organizations involved in the program,” said executive director Ricki Feist. “In time, our endowment will help us be more self-sufficient.”

RMPAT held a special event that celebrated both its founder and 20th anniversary. “In these economic conditions, we were elated to receive enough donations to not just meet, but exceed our endowment goal,” Feist said.
Endowment Challenge Grants 2008 – 2010:
For two years of endowment-building, Community First Foundation:
• matches fifty cents on every dollar placed in an endowment
• guarantees 5% interest earnings

Grant Program Supports Nonprofit Leaders
In 2009 the Foundation offered Strengthening Partners Grants for nonprofit partners to receive consulting services for executive leadership development. Twenty-four organizations participated, receiving up to $5,000 each, for guidance in areas such as leadership transition, consensus building, and leading in a down economy. “As a new executive director, the Strengthening Partners grant has been invaluable for me. We were able to hire a consultant not only to ensure a smooth leadership transition, but to strengthen our organizational practices.”

Katie Naain, Executive Director, Colorado Alliance for Environmental Education

Educational Seminars
As a benefit to nonprofits that hold funds at the Foundation, we provide complimentary seminars on a variety of topics. These well-received seminars give nonprofit staff the opportunity to advance their skills when the cost of training is a barrier. Classes in 2009 featured expert speakers and issues, such as:
• The Power of the Ask, Joan Mason, The Mason Group
• Elevating Your Organization’s Voice, Galloway Group

From 2004 - 2009, 65 organizations raised more than $7 million for their endowments through the Endowment Challenge Grants program. The Foundation boosted this amount with $4 million.
GivingFirst.org Online Donations Increase Nearly 30%

The year 2009 marked the strongest year so far for GivingFirst.org, the Foundation’s online giving resource. Donations exceeded the one million dollar mark, representing a nearly 30% increase over the previous year.

That influx of generosity, combined with 53 more nonprofits joining the site, resulted in $1.1 million in online donations for 223 nonprofit organizations.

Tracking the Trends

Statistics and surveys gleaned through GivingFirst.org provide the Foundation with compelling information about online giving patterns in Colorado.

In its latest report, called The Future of Giving, the Foundation compared annual trends and provided an outlook for online giving in coming years.

For example, we found:

- More donors gave gifts in 2009, but in smaller amounts than the previous year.
- The majority of donations are given in November and December.
- Interest in recurring donations, an automated way to give regular gifts, is increasing.

Findings like these help the Foundation guide nonprofits on how, when and why to promote online giving.

“Our donors like that 100% of their gifts goes to Sobriety House since Community First Foundation covers credit card fees.”

Mary Jo Baker
Development Director
Sobriety House

“GivingFirst gives us credibility by showing that we are validated and screened by a community foundation.”

Stephanie Baer
Executive Director
Children’s Outreach Project

“We’ve had great success with the recurring donation feature on GivingFirst.org. It helps people give smaller amounts over time rather than in one big chunk.”

Boulder County AIDS Project

GivingFirst.org is an online giving resource featuring Colorado charities. Made possible by Community First Foundation, it encourages charitable giving by providing comprehensive, objective and up-to-date information about Colorado charities – and an easy way to support them online.

A Modern Gift Exchange

It’s not every day that a kid gives up birthday gifts to help others. But that’s just what a boy named Spencer did for his 7th birthday celebration.

The East Coast boy had just returned from an exciting trip to Steamboat Springs, Colorado, where he snowboarded for the first time. Realizing that he didn’t really need presents for his upcoming birthday, he and his mother Kristen came up with a plan. “He wanted to give to others,” Kristen said, “and decided to share the outdoors experience. It was very meaningful for him.”

Spencer asked friends to donate to SOS Outreach, an outdoor adventure program for youth, in lieu of birthday gifts. The process was easy for both him and his friends: Using the Internet and GivingFirst.org, he was able to share both information about SOS Outreach and direct friends to give their gifts online. “I hope that other kids have a chance to find out how snowboarding is and how much fun you can have!” said Spencer.

7-year-old Spencer asked friends to donate through GivingFirst.org for his birthday.

Invest in Kids Raises $42,900 Through GivingFirst.org

According to Invest in Kids, a nonprofit that focuses on the needs of vulnerable families, 16% of Colorado’s children live in poverty and 25% qualify as low income. Invest in Kids partners with local communities to improve the well-being of these families in Colorado through research-based programs.

Before joining GivingFirst.org in 2007, Invest in Kids was unable to receive online donations. But, after two years of incorporating online giving into their fundraising efforts, Invest in Kids ended 2009 with an impressive total of $42,900 in online donations.

“The benefit of joining GivingFirst is very quantifiable,” said Lisa Merlino, executive director. “It is absolutely critical to small and mid-sized nonprofits because we simply don’t have the resources to build our own online donation system. The program helps us bring in more money and expand our impact.”

Invest in Kids can serve one child for an entire year at the cost of $125. By using GivingFirst.org, Invest in Kids saved $1,287 in credit card fees in 2009. “Because of these savings, 10 more children in Colorado have access to our programs,” said Merlino.

“It is absolutely critical to small and mid-sized nonprofits because we simply don’t have the resources to build our own online donation system.”

Donor Advised Funds Keep Dreams Alive

Community First Foundation helps individuals, families and groups support charities and issues they care about. One popular method for charitable giving is the Donor Advised Fund. This type of fund helps a person or group donate systematically to one or more charities. Community First Foundation manages the fund, providing full administrative support.

Donor Advised Fund Helps Grandson Fulfill Grandfather’s Wishes

Many of us have heard the phrase “those who can’t do, teach” when it comes to the teaching profession.

Former teacher, university dean and author Lindley Stiles heard this remark many times. In fact, Stiles passionately opposed this attitude, and dedicated his later years to change it.

Stiles, who received his undergraduate and graduate degrees from the University of Colorado (CU), approached his alma mater to promote a concept he dubbed “The Best Should Teach.” Stiles believed that teaching is the one profession that nourishes all others—and, therefore, should be occupied by the most talented people. CU’s School of Education and Graduate Teacher Program adopted his concept and created an initiative to recruit, support and reward excellence in teaching.

When Stiles passed away in 2008, he named his grandson Brian Good to carry out the charitable wishes outlined in his will. “I am excited to be able to keep my grandfather’s dream moving forward,” said Good, who created a special Best Should Teach committee that includes his mother, aunt, CU faculty and Dean of Education.

To help manage and distribute the funds, Good created a Donor Advised Fund through Community First Foundation. The new “Best Should Teach” Fund allows Good to advise how grant disbursements are made from the fund and receive support and expertise from Foundation staff.

“The Best Should Teach” Fund will help more universities adopt my grandfather’s philosophy about teaching,” said Good. So far, three more universities have developed programs based on the philosophy. Although taking on the responsibility of his illustrious grandfather’s mission was originally daunting, Good says that helping his grandfather and the teaching profession “is a privilege and an honor.”

“I am excited to keep my grandfather’s dream moving forward.”
Brian Good

Community First Foundation keeps a pulse on community needs and charitable programs that enrich the community. The following are highlights of programs we helped fund in 2009.

Children Learn What Makes The World Go ‘Round

What’s the best way to learn about business? Run your own company! That’s the theory behind “Young AmeriTowne,” a novel program developed by the Young Americans Center for Financial Education.

Young AmeriTowne is a child-friendly program that helps more than 18,000 5th grade children per year learn topics such as business and economics. Lessons prepare students for the most exciting part of the curriculum: operating a life-like town.

Located in Young Americans’ Cherry Creek building, this make-believe town was constructed to function like a real town, with 17 businesses and services. A second “town” in Belmar reaches even more students.

To enlighten children on the importance of charitable giving, Community First Foundation supports children’s financial education by helping with the nonprofit Young Americans Center for Financial Education. (1)

During a hands-on “work” day at Young AmeriTowne, children select one of six real charities to receive a Young AmeriTowne dollar. Community First Foundation adds real grant funds to each dollar.

Since 2004, the Foundation has granted more than $72,000 to support philanthropic learning at Young AmeriTowne.

Grant Helps Denver Drug Strategy Promote Safer Communities

No child, adult, or family can build a strong community when youth are at risk or battling substance abuse.

To address substance abuse and create safer communities in Denver, Community First Foundation provided a $14,000 grant to the Denver Office of Drug Strategy (DODS) with another $10,000 planned for 2010. This grant was dedicated to support a strategic plan to help DODS strengthen the relationship between nonprofits and government agencies, resulting in an additional government grant of $400,000 for DODS’ work.

“As a result of the good work we were able to accomplish with support from the Community First Foundation grant,” said division director Karla Maraccini, “the state has provided us with a funding opportunity to double prevention efforts with the Colorado Prevention Partnerships for Success program and bring on additional staff.”

With this program, Denver area youth can live in a safer, substance-free community.

Table: GivingFirst.org

In 2009 Community First Foundation awarded $3.3 million in grants. Grants are made through the Foundation’s Nonprofit Preservation Initiative which, from a grant-making perspective, is comprised of the Endowment Challenge Grant Program, GivingFirst.org, the Strengthening Partners Grants Program, and the management of various types of charitable funds on behalf of our nonprofit partners.

The Foundation also makes grants from Donor Advised Funds and the Foundation’s family of discretionary and restricted funds. Last, the Foundation makes grants to Exempla Lutheran Medical Center through its oversight of a family of funds designated for use at that organization.

SELECTED COMMUNITY GRANTS
The Foundation maintains funds to which donors have contributed over time to address specific areas of interest and need in the community. In 2009, the following community grants were made to worthy organizations, including:

Business Health Forum
$5,000 to provide educational forums at the Aurora and West Chambers of Commerce on issues related to health care reform and its impact on consumers and employers.

Senior’s Resource Center
$18,389 to support the Care Navigator Demonstration Project. This program assists older adult patients at Wheat Ridge Internal Medicine in accessing non-medical, community-based services.

Young Americans Center for Financial Education
$11,354 to support a curriculum devoted to educating students about philanthropy at Young AmeriTown at Belmar.

In 2009, Community First Foundation awarded $3.3 million in grants

DONOR ADVISED FUND GRANTS
